

more traditional approach, while the Metro Light range, Pret-a-Pot and S Series add a vibrant dash of modern style to any space.

Catering to the growing demand for large, lightweight pots, the Metro Light range of paintable fibreclay pots is proving to be very popular with homeowners, designers and landscapers. The pots are made from lightweight fibreclay so the company is able to produce sizes larger than pots available in ceramic or concrete, which are restricted due to kiln size and weight. Fibreclay is also highly durable and largely impervious to moisture, enabling the application of metallic paint finishes such as rust and verdigris for that aged and industrial look.

Operating at the quality end of the market, Kellock Trading not only offers a broad range of outdoor décor, but also, unlike most other pottery suppliers, creates designs in consultation with clients. In addition, some of its pottery ranges can be custom-designed to suit a client's specific needs.

All pots and planters are designed with Australian applications in mind and will stand up well to the harsh climate. Kellock Trading keeps a large amount of stock on hand (which can be shipped Australia-wide) and staff strive to respond promptly to all enquiries regarding availability or requests for advice. With a constant finger on the pulse of all design trends, you can rest assured that Kellock Trading has the right style and selection for your dream outdoor space.
